Overview of Agency Assistance and Support

Planning for Ongoing Support Needs

The School's Role

Before High School the youth's world exists primarily in the scope of school-age activities where services focus primarily on school life and are documented in the youth's IEP or 504 Plan. However, as the youth approaches the High School years, the focus becomes the transition to adult living and working. This document is intended to assist transition team partners to have a better understanding of the variety of agencies that might be involved at the time of transition. The Agency Navigation Tool includes an Ohio Department of Education and Workforce page that focuses on the transition years; however, for information about other aspects of the school's role contact:

Look Ahead to Plan for Support

Many youth with disabilities will continue to need some type of support after they leave high school to find a job, to live on their own and to take part in activities and services in their community. Some of these youth will be eligible for services from various types of agencies. The supports that are available vary from agency to agency and are dependent on the youth meeting eligibility requirements to receive service for any specific agency.

Learn about Agency Requirements

This can be a confusing time for a youth and his or her family. Adult eligibility for agency services is determined based on different standards than those used by schools when providing student services. It is important for youth and their families to begin to understand the adult world requirements as they plan for the future. Families and their teams can use the information in this document to begin to explore agencies through an 'adult lens'. The youth's transition team can contact agencies of interest to ask further questions about the eligibility process and invite agency representatives to meetings.

Connect Early

Make connections with agencies while youth are still in school. Agency representatives can then get to know the youth, contribute to the youth's future planning, and gain awareness of the types of supports and services they might need, as well as advise about the potential for eligibility for various agencies.

How to Use This Document

Planning for Ongoing Support Needs

Be Proactive

Youth, families, and transition teams should explore a variety of partner agencies to determine which agencies can offer support, services, and resources that will assist to move the youth along the path to employment. In most cases the agencies that can offer a youth service or resources will be determined by the agencies' eligibility criteria, available services, and the youth's adult life goals. It is important to keep these criteria in mind in order to be prepared to provide the needed information.

The information in this document may assist in the initial discussions and questions regarding agency eligibility and extent of service. Being prepared to offer needed information, as well as thinking ahead to questions to ask, will assist to navigate the individual agencies that can help a youth transition to adulthood and beyond.

Gather Information

Discuss and collect the following types of information to help agencies determine the services and supports a youth may be eligible to receive as an adult. Some information is easily provided. Other information will require some consideration.

Age: Services may only be available to those of a certain age. Some may start while a youth is in school (age 14 or older). Some require the person to be age 18 or older.

1. Disability: Some agencies require a formal diagnosis of a disability AND that the identified disability be one that the agency is able to serve.

2. Challenges and Limitations: Agency may require documentation of challenges caused by the disability and how those challenges impact the youth's ability to learn, work, be safe, care for personal needs, and/ or participate in daily life.

3. Level of Need: Agencies may have limited resources and will prioritize those individuals considered to have the greatest need to receive support and service before those whose needs are determined to be less critical.

4. Type of Need: The type of service needed by a youth may only be available through certain agencies or providers. Example: Employment supports, Community living support, Transportation.

5. Financial: Some resources are only available to people with limited income. In some cases, a youth may not be eligible for resources or supports because their or their family's income is above the allowed limit.

6. Availability: Some services or resources may be limited and require individuals to be placed on waiting lists for specific services/resources.

7. Residence: Agency service providers may only serve specific geographic areas of the state.

8. Youth Goals: The youth's outcome or adult goal can help determine which agency should provide services or if an agency should provide a service. When contacting agencies, it is most important to have goals and outcomes that drive a request for service.

Who are the Agencies?

Many agencies and organizations may be a part of the youth's current and future plans, however the agencies listed below are highlighted throughout this tool.

A general overview of who might be eligible for an agency's services is provided for each agency

What Services Are Available?
Ohio agencies offer many services that assist citizens to find and keep a job, afford food and shelter, receive health care, and access training and education. However, not every option is available to every person. Not every option is available all the time. And not every person needs every option! Ohio Department of Education and Workforce/Office for Exceptional Children

Ohio Department of Education/Office for Exceptional Children provides leadership, assistance and oversight to school districts and other entities that provide differentiated instruction for students with disabilities and gifted students. The Department also coordinates 16 regional state support teams. State support teams assist district efforts in the areas of school improvement, preschool and special education. There is no cost to use these services.

Who is Eligible?

Children between the ages of three and twenty-one with a disability that adversely affects their educational performance may be eligible for specialized instruction and support (special education and related services).

Not every child or youth with a learning challenge or a disability is eligible for special education services. If a disability is suspected the school must determine:

- If the disability meets the criteria of one of the 13 disability categories defined in the Individuals with Disability Education Act (IDEA)

- If the child demonstrates an educational need that requires specially designed instruction.

- That the disability is not the result of a lack of basic instruction in reading or math or the child's limited English proficiency.

Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) requires that school teams complete an evaluation process to determine if the student is eligible for services. This is the Evaluation Team Report or ETR. This evaluation may consist of both formal and informal assessments, records review, and observation. Results of the ETR are reviewed to determine eligibility.

Service Overview

If found eligible for special education services, the team then must develop the special education plan that identifies the needed specialized instruction, services and supports that will assist the student to progress in the general curriculum. This is the Individualized Education Program or IEP.

Services identified in IDEA that a student may be eligible for as part of the IEP include:

- Specially designed instruction

- Assistive technology

- Modifications

- Accommodations

- Supplementary aids and services

- Related services (Including, but not limited to, services such as speech-language therapy, and occupational or physical therapy. There are exceptions to what can be provided. All IEP related inquiries should be discussed at the IEP planning meetings and are ultimately an IEP team decision.)

At age 14, or younger, if appropriate, the student served by an IEP must also have in place Postsecondary Transition Goals (adult life goals) identified by age-appropriate transition assessments that are then linked to needed transition services. These services are documented on the Transition Section of the IEP and inform the focus of the other aspects of the IEP as the student moves towards graduation and adult life.

Transition services are:

- A coordinated set of activities.

- That promote movement from school to such post-school activities as post-secondary education, vocational training, employment, adult services, independent living and community participation.

- Based on the individual student's needs, taking into account his or her preferences and interests.

- Transition services include instruction, community experiences, and development of competitive, integrated employment, adult education and independent living goals or outcomes.

- Have multi-system needs or are at risk for deeper system involvement.

- Are at risk of out-of-home placement or are returning to their families from out-of-home placement.

Young people with multi-system needs often require help and services from community systems which may include juvenile justice, child protection, developmental disabilities, schools, mental health and addiction, and others.

Children and youth who may be eligible for OhioRISE:

- Are eligible for Ohio Medicaid (either managed care or fee-for-service).

Ohio Department of Transportation (ODOT): Mobility Management

Mobility Management Projects are capital projects that increase access to mobility for Ohioans by increasing understanding and awareness of transportation needs, promote coordination of transportation options to meet needs, and build sustainable and healthy communities by integrating transportation into planning and programs.

Who is Eligible?

All Ohio Mobility Management Projects are funded by the Specialized Transportation (Section 5310) Program or the Rural Transit Program (Section 5311). All sub recipients must be 5310 & 5311 eligible entities. Eligible entities include Private Non-Profit Organizations and State or Local Government authorities that are approved by state to coordinate services for older adults and individuals with disabilities and certifies that there are no nonprofit organizations readily available in the area to provide the services.

Application Process

Applications are submitted annually and are scored by ODOT – Office of Transit. Final Project Selection will be made by the Program Coordinator and the Public Transit Manager. ODOT awards projects based on application score.

Service Overview

Program Goals

- Increase understanding and awareness of community transportation needs

- Increase awareness of current community transportation options and programs

- Ensure that transportation considerations are included in local and regional planning activities

- Increase local capacity for transportation services

- Assist individuals with accessing all community transportation options

Inform and Connect

All mobility management activities point toward one goal: connecting customers to the transportation options that are most responsive to their needs. Mobility management practitioners excel at staying informed about existing community transportation services, sharing that knowledge with customers, and helping customers connect the dots in using all appropriate services.

Get Involved

Mobility Managers assist with creating the Locally Developed Transportation Plan. This plan aims to understand the gaps and unmet needs within those resources and to determine the approach to addressing those gaps and unmet needs. Local stakeholders can reach out to their Mobility Manager to help identify gaps and unmet needs for youth and people with disabilities with hopes of identifying solutions.

Gohio Mobility

Gohio Mobility is a free, comprehensive, statewide platform that brings together various modes of transportation. Users can search for transportation options using filters for location, payment type, and accommodations such as wheelchair-accessible vehicles. This mobility platform is an easy way for urban, small urban, and rural individuals can easily find contact information for the transit providers in their area. Users start by giving their starting trip location, then use the filters to find the transportation options that are the "right fit" for them. Once they hit submit, they will be provided with a list of transit providers and contact information to set up their trip.

We want this new platform to empower individuals, particularly those in need of accessible transportation, to see the transportation options in their area and save time for transportation users, caregivers, and service providers. If you would like to find out more or access this new platform you can visit their website!

Prepare for Agency Contact and Communication

Before approaching agencies for assistance, it is helpful to the agency and can quicken the necessary processes if information is readily available. Use the questions below to facilitate gathering information and documentation.

Age Services may only be available to a certain age group	When is youth's birthday?
Residence Agency may only serve specific geographic areas of the state	Where does the youth live?
Disability Some agencies require a formal diagnosis of a disability AND that the identified disability be one that the agency is able to serve.	What is the disability? Make available documentation of the diagnosis and assist the agency to recognize how the youth's diagnosis is one that the agency could serve.
Challenges and Limitations Agency may require documentation of challenges caused by the disability and how those challenges impact the youth's ability to learn, work, be safe, self-care, and participate in daily life.	Document how the diagnosis or documented disability makes employment, learning, living, etc. difficult for the youth.
Level of Need Agencies may prioritize those individuals considered to have the greatest need to receive support and service before those whose needs are determined to be less critical.	Explain how the challenges that the youth faces create barriers that the youth is not likely to overcome if support is not available.
Type of Need The type of service needed by a youth may only be available through certain agencies or providers.	Detail the type of support / service that is needed and align the request for service with the type of service the agency offers.
Financial Some resources are only available to people with limited income. Youth may not be eligible for resources or supports because their or their family's income is above the allowed limit.	Document the income and assets of the youth and family (under 18 years of age), including savings. Document expenses that the youth or family incur in order that the youth can live or work as these may be helpful when qualifying for a variety of assistance.
Availability Some services or resources may be limited and require individuals to be placed on waiting lists for specific services/resources.	Identify the types of service of support one may need long term, as an adult, to work, live and participate in the community. Ask to be placed on waiting lists for these services, even if the need seems to be years in the future.
Youth Goals The youth's outcome or adult goal can help determine which agency should provide services or if an agency should provide a service. When contacting agencies, it is most important to have goals and outcomes that drive a request for service.	Detail the adult outcomes that the youth seeks to achieve. Specially discuss employment, adult learning, living (residence) and other community participation. Explain how the requested services/supports are needed to achieve the desired adult goals.
